Introduction.

This is the day of scientific investigation. The historian, no longer satisfied with the legends and stories that cluster about the men and women of other days, seeks to ascertain the facts of their careers, to know what manner of people they were in their private lives. Hence it comes that many old records are being examined, the almost obliterated inscriptions on crumbling tomb-stones deciphered, private documents examined with scrupulous care.

The same method must be used in compiling the records of colonial families if the results are to have permanent value. The compiler of this record has sought to give a reliable account of the family with which her work is concerned. She has made a careful examination of the records possessed by the various living representatives of the Stoddler family, and has used all other accessible sources of information.

No apology need be made for the presentation of such a work. Attention to our ancestors is not only natural but most commendable. We reproduce their lives in the inheritance they have bequeathed to us. A study of their characters and deeds is no more than a study of the pit whence we were digged or the rock which once was laid.

Many of the Stoddler family continue to dwell in those parts of the country settled by the first of the name in America, but there is no South & West nor territory where representatives are not to be found. The early emigrants who bore the name were persons of sincere convictions. They left their homes in the mother country because of religious persecution. It can justly be claimed that sincerity has ever been one of the characteristics of their descendants. Though some have held positions of trust and honor in the affairs of state, the majority because of religious convictions or from love of private life, have lived quiet, happy, useful lives in the retirement of their homes. If he be a philanthropist who "makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before," these men were philanthropists indeed: for while some have sought professional or business careers, the greater number have always been identified with agricultural pursuits. Here their thrift, industry and intelligence are witnessed by broad acres and fertile fields.

Those who belong to this family will not find these statistics dry nor uninteresting. To them the names recorded on these pages will ever be incentives to a noble life. It is also hoped that this work may not be without interest to those of the larger world who realize that the real safety of a nation lies not in its armies and navies, but in the "quiet, well-ordered homes of its people," whence noble virtues spring. For when

"The tumult and the shouting die,

The captains and the kings depart,"

and the domestic virtues with obedience to law, truth to conviction, and purity of life, will remain as saving graces.

EZRA LEHMAN, Ph. D.

Preface.

The genealogical memoranda contained in the following pages do not constitute a complete register of the entire family connection. That result, however desirable it may be, is rendered difficult, if not impossible, because of the number of descendants and their dispersion throughout the West and South. Nor is it claimed for these memoranda that they are free from error in all their details. Every effort has been made to secure entire accuracy, and much time has been spent in verifying names and dates; but even with every precaution possible, there are doubtless errors and omissions. Some of the omissions were unavoidable, as whole families have removed to different parts of the West and South, and are comparatively unknown to us. Of these but little information could be obtained; but all that could be secured has been inserted, even though the result is somewhat unsatisfactory and incomplete.

The record is made up of scattered data, many of which are fragmentary, and some besides are conflicting; but it is hoped that the various items of information, gathered from every available source, are here disposed on an intelligible and systematic plan. For the Record of the first three generations, exclusive credit must be given to D. M. N. Stauffer, of 220 Broadway, N. Y., a descendant of Samuel Stauffer, IV, S, a younger brother of Abraham, IV, G. For the Record of the fourth, fifth and sixth generations, credit is hereby due to Jacob Stauffer, VI, G (b. March 4, 1808), who kept a daily register for almost forty years, and thus saved much of the older data from oblivion, and which proved most valuable and indispensable to the present work: and suggested the present effort to collect and insert all available records, and complete the genealogy down to the present time. Much credit is due Annie Stouffer Frantz, daughter of Jacob, for collecting and arranging the records embraced in her father's journals, and for other valuable assistance.

It is hoped that the preservation of these memoranda in permanent form may contribute in the future to a more complete record of all the branches of the Stouffer family: a result which may be reached if those to whom these memoranda may come will communicate their defects to the compiler, together with whatever additional data they may possess, as a contribution toward a second and more complete edition. But whether this be accomplished or not, a more immediate result certainly must be a better understanding of the mutual relationship of kindred, who however scattered, are yet united to each other by the tie of a common ancestry and a common name.

Historical Note.

It may be proper and of some interest in the first place to trace the origin of the surname STOUFFER. The root of the name is a very old German common noun Stuff, meaning a steep hill or cliff, also a tall cup, or beaker. According to heraldic records and historical accounts, it is derived from the latter meaning of the word; and with the masculine affix er, it signified a Cupper or a Cup-bearer; and the name was given to an official common at that time in the retinue of every nobleman who was powerful enough to have a household of his own. This Staufer was also the collector of tolls, taxes and whatever revenue his master might see fit to appropriate to his own use. As this position gave him influence and some authority, and enabled him to acquire a goodly income for himself, it was an office to be much desired. As noblemen were numerous in those days, and as each nobleman of old Swabia had his cup-bearer, there must have been many Staufers in Switzerland, regarding the word as the title of an office only.

Family names, or rather family surnames, descending from father to son, did not appear in Europe until about the twelfth century, and in remote sections of the country, many more decades elapsed before they were generally recognized. But when they began to regularly descend, each man, of the many official Staufers, that had a family, gave rise to a family of Staufers, all bearing the same name, but without blood relationship. This fact accounts for the great number of persons bearing that name in Switzerland at the present time, and they are especially numerous in the Canton of Berne. To which particular man of rank our own remote cup-bearer belonged, whether he was a Duke of Swabia, or a robber-knight, is a subject for conjecture only. It is sufficient for us to know that this is the most probable origin of the name as now applied to our family.

According to all the data available, the first known ancestor of the particular branch of the Stauffer Family included in these memoranda, was Daniel Stauffer, of Thum in the Canton of Berne, Switzerland. Sometime previous to 1650 he was driven from Switzerland through a persecution of the Mennonites by the Calvinistic party. He being a member of the Mennonite Church sought refuge in the Palatinate, and settled at Alsheim, a small village near Mayence. Here the family remained for some years until the country along the Rhine was ravaged by Marshall Turenna in 1675, and life became so strenuous that a number of the Swiss Mennonites in this section began to look elsewhere for peace and safety. Many of these went to Holland, and others who had been influenced and encouraged by the doctrine and overtures of William Penn when he was among them in 1672, accepted his invitation to come to Pennsylvania, when that province was granted to Penn in quittance of England's debt to his father, Admiral Penn.

Hans Stauffer, a son of Daniel, determined to emigrate to America in 1709, and on November 5 of that year he started with his wife and family down the Rhine to Rotterdam, on his way to London. The journey was a slow one, and he experienced many reverses, in consequence of which he did not reach London until January 10, 1710; and even then had to remain there for some time until he could find shipping for the new world. His diary is said to be 300 pages, and gives a daily account of his journey as far as London. There is no record of his ship, nor of the exact date of its sailing from England, as the record of the arrivals in the Province of Pennsylvania was not commenced until 1727. But the evidence goes to show that Hans Stauffer, his wife, Kinget, three sons, Jacob, Daniel and Henry, and one married daughter, Elizabeth Fiedt, arrived at Philadelphia in the summer of 1710.

Where Hans first settled is uncertain; but on December 31, 1718 his eldest son, Jacob Stauffer, bought from Samuel Powell, of Philadelphia, 500 acres of land on the west branch of Perkiomen Creek in what is now Montgomery county, Pennsylvania. At a later date his second son, Daniel Stauffer, was settled in Colebrookdale Township, Berks County, and his third son, Henry Stauffer, was located in Lancaster County, of the same province.

By D. Mc N. STAUFFER.

In 1755 Henry married Magdalena Hess, of the same county; and from this union eleven children were born. Of these we have secured the record of only one son, ABRAHAM, whose descendants form the subject of this Memoranda. There is no existing record of his family except that the issue was three sons and three daughters. In the spring of 1792 he removed to the vicinity of Chambersburg, Franklin County, Pa., where many of his descendants reside. In the same year he, with his two sons-in-law, Metz and Shetter, purchased a tract of land a mile east of Chambersburg from Patrick Vance; also a property adjoining from James Jack, of Chambersburg, in order to secure the water-right for a mill which Stauffer contemplated building. They paid four pounds and ten shillings per acre ($21.78.) which at that time was thought to be a most extravagant price. Out of the two tracts of land they made three farms; one for Metz, and one for Shetter; Stauffer keeping the middle tract for the flouring mills, which he built about 1793, and which were operated by his direct descendants for ninety years; and from whom the present village of Stoufferstown received its name

This latter from records by ABRAHAM STAUFFER, IV, 6.
